

Haroon Gunn-Salie

Biography

(b. 1989, Cape Town)

Haroon Gunn-Salie's collaborative art practice translates community oral histories into artistic interventions and installations. His multidisciplinary practice utilises a variety of mediums, drawing focus to forms of collaboration in contemporary art based on dialogue and exchange. Gunn-Salie's graduate exhibition titled Witness presented a site-specific body of work focusing on still unresolved issues of forced removals under apartheid, working with veteran residents of District Six, an area in central Cape Town where widespread forced removals occurred.

Gunn-Salie completed his BA Hons in sculpture at the University of Cape Town's Michaelis School of Fine Art in 2012.

Significant exhibitions and projects that have featured Gunn-Salie's work include: Simon Castets and Hans Ulrich Obrist's 89-plus project, for which he participated in the 89plus programme with Obrist at the 2014

Design Indaba in Cape Town; Making Africa: A Continent of Contemporary Design, which travelled to the Vitra Design Museum and Guggenheim Museum Bilbao (2015); What Remains is Tomorrow, the South African Pavilion at La Biennale di Venezia (2015); and the 19^o Festival de Arte Contemporânea Sesc Videobrasil (2015).

Gunn-Salie was placed in the top five of the Sasol new signatures competition in 2013. At the 19^o Festival de Arte Contemporânea Sesc Videobrasil in 2015 he was awarded the first ever SP-Arte/Videobrasil prize, designed to encourage and publicise the work of young artists whose lines of research focus on the debate surrounding the global south. As part of the award, Gunn-Salie will present a solo exhibition at Galpão VB during the SP-Arte fair in São Paulo in 2016.

Haroon Gunn-Salie is currently based between Cape Town and Johannesburg.
